

Political Dialogue Analysis

Würzburg International Symposium on Dialogue in Politics 13-15 September 2010

CALL FOR PAPERS

Human beings are articulate mammals and political agents. How are the two connected: is there a direct connection between them? Is politics necessarily mediated, or is it articulated directly? What is political dialogue, and what are the realisations of dialogue about politics and political dialogue?

The goal of the symposium on Dialogue in Politics is to bring together different analytic approaches and methodologies used in political discourse analysis and political dialogue analysis, examining politics as text-and-talk, politics as media events, the construction of micro politics and macro politics in and through dialogue, to name but the most prominent ones. In this sense, the symposium is open to the various approaches in Dialogue Analysis and Political Discourse Analysis but will have a specific focus on approaches that aim at addressing the mixed game of effective dialogic interaction. Issues related to cultural norms and cultural variation, mediation and institutionalization of political dialogue are included.

Possible session topics:

- Parliamentary discourse
- Political interview
- Political speech
- Political identities
- Politics and power
- Politics and gender
- Politics as text and talk
- Positioning in political dialogue

Plenary papers will be given by:

Eric A. Anchimbe (University of Bayreuth / Germany)

Peter Bull (University of York / UK)

Antje Hornscheidt (Humboldt University Berlin / Germany)
